The Musical Council. The musical council of the Metropolitan Community Church (MCC) in New York City, which is the largest of the gay churches, met last night at the Metropolitan Community Church in New York City. The council, which is the governing body of the church, met for the first time since the death of its president, Rev. Gene Robinson, who died last year. The council is composed of members from all over the world, and its members are responsible for the church's financial and administrative affairs. The council's meeting was held in a private room at the church, and it was attended by about 20 members. The council's agenda included a discussion of the church's financial situation, which is currently in a state of crisis. The council also discussed the church's response to the death of Robinson, and the council's plans for the future. The council's meeting was a significant event for the church, and it was a testament to the church's commitment to its members and to its mission.
